When Your 1099-K Looks Like Charles II of Spain's Family Tree

#ageofscorpius #milowinter #asdtriggers

I don't even know what is happening here.

I mean:

- Are there records of the refunds?
- Are the bookmarks tax deductible?
- If the dog travelled to Finland, were import fees filed?
- Import fees for renting a shipping container if the books were printed overseas?
- State taxes per book sold, customs documentation and fees for international shipments.
- Are liftgates tax deductible?
- What about municipal trash pickup if you claim it as a business expense? Is that even allowed?
- Form 1042-S???

- If you go from minimal income, to making six figures in the middle of the year, and then down to no income, how does that even work when filing taxes?
- Income from multiple sources: TikTok, Patreon, other???
- The dog may be a quantum event that does not exist until observed.
- Oh shit, if the team was international, how do you file the Schedule-Cs?
- Domestic contractors imply 1099-NECs.
- Is Finland real?
- Withholding treaties, foreign service declarations, W-8BEN/W-8BEN-E for non-US residents employed or contracted, currency conversion logs, total payments by recipient ….
- Motherfuck, if employees are still being paid — this implies working while overseas in the Schengen Area. There's fees and taxes with that too. And possibly some labor law violations.
- W-2s are an event horizon.

CPAs will self-combust on contact with these 1099-Ks.

Maybe finding God will help?

Uh, about the Winter/Age of Scorpius content. I'm not doing this because I want to boost my own book and profile by riding on Winter's controversies. That's tacky, and rather unethical. Truthfully, I didn't mean to, but every time I look at this, it opens up another 404 Error in my brain. And my ASD won't leave it alone.

Sorry for dragging everyone else into my Research Hell and making you suffer with me.

Shut the fuck up, Carnot.
